

BODY OF UNKNOWN DUE IN U. S. TO-DAY

Olympia, Dewey Flagship, Will Be Escorted Through the Virginia Capes.

SLOW TRIP UP POTOMAC

Every Detail of Great Ceremony at Capital Carefully Mapped Out.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
New York Herald Bureau,
Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.

The body of the Unknown Soldier will be brought back home to-morrow—back home in the sense that the historic old cruiser Olympia, which is the funeral ship, will pass into American waters with all that remains of an American warrior who will be laid at rest at Arlington National Cemetery with the fullest military honors not only of the United States but of the allies associated in the cause against the Central Powers.

The destroyer Bernadou, detailed to meet the Olympia at sea and escort her through the Virginia Capes and on to Washington, left to-night on the mission. It is yet uncertain just when the Olympia will pass through the Capes, but it will be some time late to-morrow.

The cruiser will travel slowly up the Potomac River, this of necessity because of the shallow channel. Ordinarily vessels of so great a draft do not attempt to navigate the river, but it has been done, notably last summer by the marine transport Henderson, which carried Congressional and other committees to and from the Westmoreland incident to the sinking of the German warships off the Virginia coast.

The time of arrival is set tentatively at 3 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, but it may be later than that when the Olympia swings up to the pier. The ceremony that is to follow will be in charge of the navy. It will be brief, lasting not more than an hour, during which the body will be turned over to the United States Army, which will be in immediate charge of the burial.

The word went out to-day that a silent tribute would be paid the Unknown Soldier in the rotunda of the United States Capitol from the time of the arrival of the body late Wednesday until early Thursday morning. No body will be allowed to enter the rotunda, except, of course, the honor guard, made up of representatives of all branches of the military service.

But on Thursday between 8 in the morning and 10 at night the public will be allowed to file past the flag-draped coffin. Meantime ceremonies conducted in the name of different organizations, such as the American Legion and the G. A. R., will be under way. Not more than fifteen minutes is to be allowed for any one of these.

In order to insure a complete understanding of the order of ceremonies for the day of the funeral, Friday, the War Department issued the most detailed instructions for the special guests and the public.

ARMISTICE HOLIDAY PROCLAIMED BY MILLER

Governor Calls for Two Minute Silence at Noon.

ALBANY, Nov. 7.—Gov. Miller to-day issued the following proclamation declaring Friday, November 11, a holiday:

"Whereas, pursuant to a joint resolution of Congress, approved November 4, the President of the United States declares November 11, 1921, a holiday, as a mark of respect to the memory of those who gave their lives in the late war, as typified by the Unknown and Identified American Soldier who is to be buried in Arlington National Cemetery at the capital on that date, and has requested the Governors of the various States to issue similar proclamations:

"Now, therefore, I, Nathan L. Miller, Governor of the State of New York, pursuant thereto, hereby declare, November 11, 1921, a holiday, and to solemnize the occasion request that public and church bells throughout the State be sounded on that day at intervals from 11:45 to 12 o'clock noon, as they were on the first Armistice Day; that at 12 o'clock noon all the people of the State unite for two minutes in a silent tribute to our heroic dead; that the national colors be displayed at half mast throughout the day and all unite in devoutly thanking Almighty God for the triumph on November 11, 1918, of the heroic defense of human freedom by the valorous lives typified by the Unknown Soldier and in suppliantly praying for a continuance of divine blessing and guidance."

FOUR INDIAN CHIEFS TO HONOR WAR DEAD

Will Join in Unknown Soldier Ceremonial.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Four American Indian chiefs, each a tribal hero, will join to the Unknown Dead at Arlington next Friday the highest honors known to their race by placing upon the coffin a rein stick and war bonnet. Plenty Cools of the Crow, Leno Wolf of the Kiowa and Amos Red Owl and Stranger Horse of the Sioux were chosen to confer the decoration by Commissioner of Indian Affairs Burke, because of their prominence in the history of the West. Each is a high chief in his tribe and has fought American soldiers. They will be dressed in full warrior regalia.

The coup stick is several feet long and was carried by warriors who considered it a brave deed to touch an enemy during a fight. When a warrior did so he cut a notch in the stick or attached to it an eagle feather.

The war bonnet was regarded by the warrior as the most important article of his regalia, and only proven braves were allowed to wear one. The long plume was made from eagle feathers.

OVERSEAS LEAGUE AT GRAVE.

Will Be Represented by Miss Hunter in Ceremony.

BOSTON, Nov. 7.—The American Women's Overseas League of New England will be represented at the ceremony at Washington in honor of America's Unknown Soldier by Miss Elizabeth G. Hunter of this city, it was announced to-day.

She went overseas with the first telephone operators' unit and handled the switches at Chaumont headquarters, at Neufchateau and in the Toul sector, and at the Hotel de Crillon during the Paris conference.

UNITED STATES LINERS TO ECLIPSE ALL OTHERS

Shipping Board Announces
Programme of Perfection.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
New York Herald Bureau,
Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.

Plans for making the United States Line the finest steamship company operating between the port of New York and Germany have been completed, according to an announcement made by the Shipping Board to-day. The line at present is operating five steamships—the George Washington, America, Princess Matilda, Potomac and Susquehanna.

"The America, which was only reconditioned temporarily, will most likely be permanently reconditioned during the winter, the work being carried out when she is in port, both at home and abroad," says the statement. "It is the intention to restore the America to her original condition when she was flying the German flag. When finished the United States Line will have in her and the George Washington two passenger vessels that will not be surpassed by any other liners of the same tonnage."

RICCI WOULD ABOLISH 'DIPLOMATIC MYSTERY'

Says He Came Here Determined to Tell the Truth.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—Elimination of "diplomatic mystery" was advocated to-day by Rolando Ricci, Italian Ambassador to the United States, in an address at a luncheon in honor of Gen. Diaz.

"I came to the United States determined to tell the truth," he said. "I believe a diplomat can be silent, but he must not lie. I found your statesmen possessed the same idea and the same way of doing business."

"I see no reason for covering in Old World diplomatic mystery our progress for the arms conference. We come with the desire and intention of peace, and even to the point of its acceptance by those who do not desire it. Above all individual interests, above all competitions and ambition and above all using of peoples for gain is the interest of humanity that was should be made, if not impossible at least very difficult, and that men should be allowed to work and think in peace for the future of their children."

BRINGS ENGLAND'S FLOWERS.

War Mother Arrives With Tribute
for Unknown Soldier.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Mrs. Emma McCudden, representing the Pillgrim Fathers Association, arrived here to-day with the flowers which will be placed on the coffin of America's Unknown Soldier on Armistice Day. She also brought the signatures of several hundred thousand British sympathizers with America in the homage to be paid to the soldier dead. Mrs. McCudden lost three sons in the war, one of them a great British air hero.

MYSTERIOUS KILLING IN DAY OF VIOLENCE

Youth About to Become Bridegroom Shot Through the Heart in Store.

MASKED MEN GET $5,000

One 'Dishonest' Victim Hit in Face for Trying to Conceal Money.

One mysterious slaying which may have been a murder, and nearly a score of holdups, assaults, thefts and burglaries showed yesterday a marked revival of criminal activity on the eve of election. Thousands of dollars of loot was taken by bandits and one policeman was beaten nearly to death.

There is no clue in the slaying, which caused the death of Harry Cook, 19, of 701 East Ninth street, a clerk in the delicatessen store of Carl Weber, 121 St. Marks place. Cook staggered out from the store and fell dead on the sidewalk with a bullet in his heart, but no one heard a shot and no weapon was seen. Cook was to have become a partner in the store with the aid of his father-in-law. If he was shot by hold-up men they got away without taking anything.

Four men masked with handkerchiefs and armed with pistols held up twenty men in a restaurant at 936 Westchester avenue, The Bronx, looted the cash register and the patrons' pockets and went away in an automobile with about $5,000. One man hid $300 in the leg of his trousers, but it fell out and a robber slapped his face and reproved him for "dishonesty." Though the taxi was wrecked at Fox and Tiffany streets, the men made off on foot and were not captured. The chauffeur of the taxi, Max Scholch, of 115 East 107th street, told the police the men forced him to drive to and from the restaurant. He was not held.

John McNab, 353 West 118th street, a theatre manager, was held up by three masked men at Manhattan avenue and 121st street and robbed of diamonds and cash worth $1,500. McNab put up a fight and received a number of cuts and bruises, but could not save his valuables.

Pattuck, R. L., Nov. 7.—After receipt of a letter from Mrs. Lillian Nichols to-day Frank E. Rose found the woman and her seven-year-old son dead in bed at the Nichols home. The gas had been turned on. Mrs. Nichols had been in poor health and in her letter said that when it was received she would be dead.

charge of men who formerly worked in the place had something to do with the assault.

Burglars got $25,000 in jewels from the apartment of Miss Marie Forrest, 540 Manhattan avenue, a week ago, the police admitted. The gems were taken from a wall safe, of which the door had been removed with great care. Eight thousand dollars worth of jewelry in another room was overlooked by the thieves.

JESUIT COLLEGE LOSES MAIN BUILDING BY FIRE

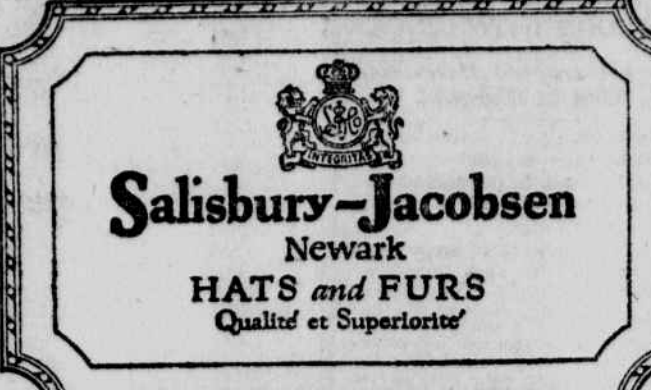

Its President and Another
Priest Rescued.

MACON, Ga., Nov. 7.—The principal building of St. Stanislaus College, a Jesuit institution for the priesthood, located just outside of the city limits, was destroyed by fire of undetermined origin to-night. The structure, five stories in height and of brick, cost $150,000 and was insured for $50,000. There was no loss of life but firemen rescued the Rev. Father J. Depotter, president of the college, and the Rev. Father Merrivether, the latter 88 years of age.

Priests and students disregarded their personal property and endeavored to save valuable volumes in the library of the institution. They succeeded in carrying out all the books which could not be replaced, it was announced, one Spanish Bible dated 1490 and another a Bible dated 1510.

MOTHER KILLS SON AND SELF.

PATTSBURGH, R. I., Nov. 7.—After receipt of a letter from Mrs. Lillian Nichols to-day Frank E. Rose found the woman and her seven-year-old son dead in bed at the Nichols home. The gas had been turned on. Mrs. Nichols had been in poor health and in her letter said that when it was received she would be dead.

THE NEW YORK HERALD AND THE Limitation of Armaments Conference

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE

PRESIDENT HARDING

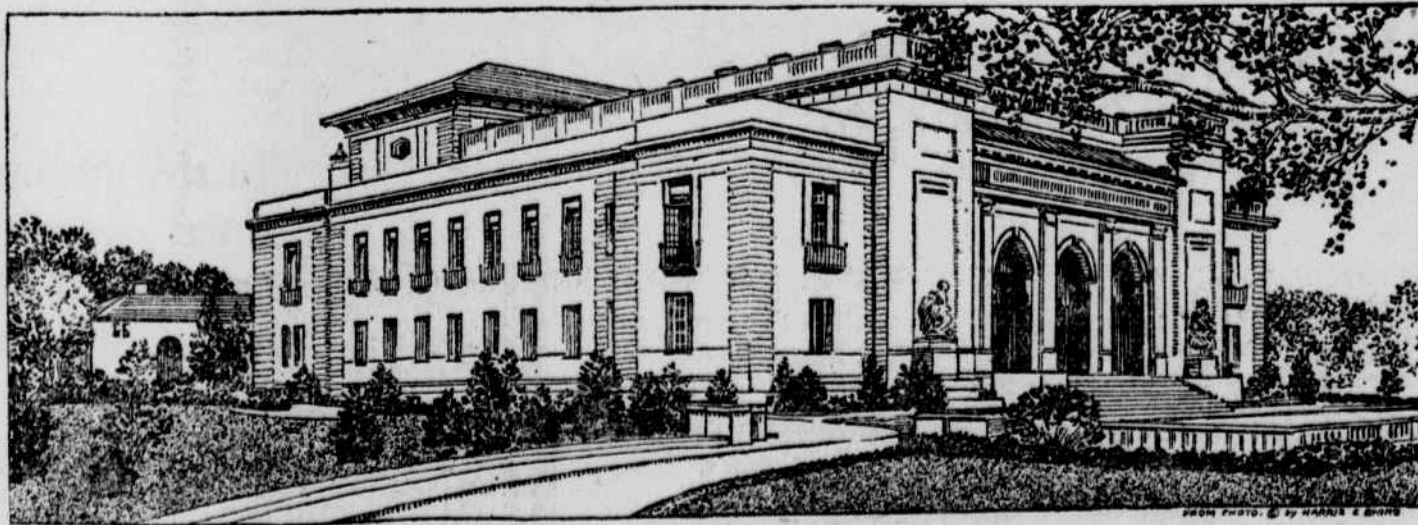

ARISTIDE BRIAND

THE Conference on the Limitation of Armaments, beginning November 11 in Washington, may profoundly affect the history of the human race. It will be fraught with potentialities of tremendous import. The comings and goings of its members, their public declarations, their decisions and the undercurrent of their relationship will be of prodigious importance.

THE NEW YORK HERALD'S story of the events as they take place will be authentic. The Staff assigned to report the Conference is a worthy successor to those brilliant men who first gave The Herald an International reputation.

THE HERALD sends Mr. Louis Seibold, an International reporter, to write the daily lead-story of this International Conference. Mr. Seibold has but recently returned from Japan, where he spent several months in a first hand study of conditions. He is thoroughly well informed on the Pacific and Far East questions which promise to hold the front of the stage at the Conference.

EVERY phase of the discussions will be faithfully chronicled in The New York Herald and every reader of The Herald reports will have the satisfaction of knowing that nothing significant has been overlooked.

CPFN ELICTION DAY At the American Art Galleries Madison Square South, New York The De Souhami Collection FROM THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE

Beauty Marks Souhami's Art On Exhibition

Collection at American Galleries Represents Stock
Here With Additions
From His French House

Ensemble Is Harmonious

Tapestries in Ascendant, With Furniture Pressing
Close in Display Scheme

By Royal Cortissoz

A dealer's collection seldom has the unity which belongs to the mass of objects just placed on exhibition at the American Art Galleries. These things are the property of M. Henri S. de Souhami of Paris and New York. Most of them represent his stock here, but there are additions brought from his French establishment. They make a harmonious ensemble—and one of great beauty—because they illustrate, on the whole, our broad European tradition. Tapestries are in the ascendant, with furniture closely pressing them. The sale is set for next Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoons.

The tapestries are of Flemish and French origin, dating from the sixteenth to the eighteenth centuries. Many of them are highly pictorial in motive, notably the set of seventeenth century Gobelin pieces (No. 327), illustrating the history of the children of Niobe. This is a noble group, and of the same imposing character is the example of Flemish Renaissance (No. 328) which celebrates an episode in the life of Judas Maccabeus. Two Flemish tapestries based on cartoons by Teniers (Nos. 330 and 331) may also be cited in this category. But we fancy that collectors will turn with almost greater eagerness to the specimens of verdure, and in one respect M. de Souhami makes a particularly strong appeal to those who are looking for purely decorative material of both an artistic and a practical nature. We refer to his numerous borders and similar pieces of essentially adaptable stuff. The old Flemish or French "cantonniers" is ideally designed to enrich a doorway or window frame in almost any house embellished with antiques. This collection is gloriously rich in it.

Needlework Is Shown

Needlework in various forms is present in abundance. There are numerous panels suitable for this or that decorative purpose, and, above all, there is a great array of chairs with needlework covers. They are beautiful objects. The choice here is among unmistakably authentic and fine examples, and the range is wide. English as well as French craftsmen of the historic periods are represented. There are other types of furniture also, certain French Renaissance and regence pieces of singular perfection, and, among the productions in wood, several striking Gothic souvenirs.

The glass, after the Lawrence splendor of last season, is a little disappointing. But it is not by any means negligible, and a few of the exhibits reach a high plane. This is especially the case with the superb panel from Evreux (No. 359), an illustration of the legend of St. Christopher, dating from the fifteenth century. There are some ruby notes in it, but these are subordinate to passages of blue and green. For a kind of sober mellowness this is one of the most beguiling pieces of glass we have ever seen. There are no particularly impressive canvases in the group of paintings, though the eight panels (No. 360) from the school of Boucher have a pleasing decorative quality, and there is merit in the version (No. 354) of one of the most familiar and charming of Rubens's compositions, the "Infant Saviour and St. John."

Metal and Stone Display

Architects and decorators will find their account in the departments of metal and stone. The old Gothic mantelpiece from the Gontaut Biron collection (No. 361) is a gem of its kind. All the wrought iron is good, including the appliques, the andirons and the candlesticks. Scattered through the gathering of tapestries and furniture there are numbers of miscellaneous objects—the exquisite Tabriz silk carpet (No. 339) which hangs at the end of one of the upper rooms, the few reliefs in marble and stone and the sixteenth century French bronze (No. 18), which is one of M. de Souhami's chief treasures. He is clearly a dealer of taste and judgment—and of good fortune. His belongings maintain a remarkably sound average of excellence.
